

2016 SLSA
ANNUAL SEMINAR

Labour Law for a Warming World?

EXPLORING THE INTERSECTIONS
OF WORK REGULATION AND ENVIRONMENTAL SUSTAINABILITY

WHEN:

SEPT 12, 2016 / 9AM-5PM

WHERE:

UNIVERSITY OF WARWICK
IAS, MILLBURN HOUSE

CONTACT:

a.zbyszewska@warwick.ac.uk

FREE TO ATTEND; SPACE LIMITED

THIS INTERDISCIPLINARY, EXPLORATORY SEMINAR will bring labour lawyers and socio-legal scholars interested in work regulation in conversation with researchers in environmental law and sustainability, climate justice, and international development to reflect on:

- 1) whether labour law and work regulation can play a role in facilitating the development of more socially cohesive, egalitarian, and ecologically sustainable labour regimes; and
- 2) how the adoption of a broad ecological perspective, or one that is grounded in a notion of long-term sustainability challenges labour law frameworks, and whether it can be usefully applied to rethinking and revitalizing the discipline.

The seminar is free to attend, but space is limited so please register by contacting the organizer
Dr Ania Zbyszewska at a.zbyszewska@warwick.ac.uk.

WITH SUPPORT FROM:
Socio-Legal Studies Association (SLSA)
University of Warwick Faculty of Social Sciences