

The Foundation for Law, Justice and Society

Bridging the gap between academia and policymakers

Visit our Website

FLJS Film: Paths of Glory

To kick off our programme of events for Michaelmas Term, we'll be marking the centenary of the Armistice with a screening of Stanley Kubrick's masterpiece Paths of Glory, on 29th October.

The film is considered to be both Kubrick's finest work and the best film about WWI ever made.

Political philosopher Cecile Fabre, whose work considers the ethics of war, punishment of war criminals, and commemoration of wars, will give a short talk to introduce the screening.

Watch trailer & book seats

The Post-Populist Constitution

On 30 October, Professor Denis Galligan, Emeritus Professor of Socio-Legal Studies, will deliver the fourth Max Watson Annual Lecture, entitled The Post-Populist Constitution: Reassessing the People in the Constitution.

The lecture will be followed by a workshop the following day to explore the themes raised.

Find out more and Register Now

Why Institutions Matter

An increasing number of developing countries adopt regulatory laws to remain relevant in an increasingly globalized world, India and Pakistan being prime examples, following the legal legacy of British rule.

On 13 November, we will examine how these countries are updating their regulatory infrastructure, and how the interplay of institutions can affect the legitimacy, compatibility, and ultimate success of these transplanted laws in the adopting countries.

Find out more and register here

Uber v TfL: Legal Challenges of the 'Sharing Economy'

Our latest policy brief examines the legal and regulatory challenges raised by the huge growth of companies in the so-called 'sharing' economy.

The authors assess Uber in the UK and Didi in China in relation to recent high-profile concerns over public safety, the threats to jobs of existing 'offline' workers, and the use of personal data.

Download the Policy Brief

The Foundation for Law, Justice and Society | 01865 284433 | info@fljs.org | www.fljs.org

STAY CONNECTED

Foundation for Law, Justice and Society | Wolfson College, Linton Road, University of Oxford,
Oxford, Oxon OX2 6UD United Kingdom

Unsubscribe marieselwood@btinternet.com

Update Profile | About our service provider

Sent by phil.dines@fljs.org in collaboration with

Constant Contact
Try it free today