

The Foundation for Law, Justice and Society

Bridging the gap between academia and policymakers

Visit our Website

Announcing our New Website!

Over the past few months, we've been revamping FLJS.org to showcase the hundreds of podcasts, videos, policy briefs and opinion pieces it offers – all free to stream & download.

The revamped site features a user-friendly new Themes section, advanced search functions, and 'Trending' content.

Check out the new website

Latest Policy Brief: Why banning TikTok could lead to a damaging 'splinternet' effect

In our latest Policy Brief, Jufang Wang argues that the threatened banning of the Chinese video-sharing platform TikTok on 'national security' grounds would undermine much-needed competition within the tech industry and lead to a more fractured 'splinternet'.

She shows that regulatory pressure could reinforce a more stable, rule-based environment for all online media platforms and protect the free speech rights of TikTok's hundreds of millions of users.

From Banning to Regulating TikTok

Jufang Wang, former Vice-Director of News, CBI Online

Download the Policy Brief

Latest Podcast: Holey Union: The Constitutional Paradox of Secession

As Scotland prepares for elections that could reopen the independence debate, constitutional expert Prof Rivka Weill looks at the unique challenge that secessionists pose to constitutional democracies.

She argues that democratic states use potent and carefully disguised constitutional tools to prevent secessionists from achieving their goals, leaving no option for independence movements but to resort to extra-legal means.

Listen to the Podcast

Navalny, Magnitsky & the State of Law in Putin's Russia

As tensions escalate between Russia and the West following Alexei Navalny's imprisonment and military build-up in Ukraine, Foreign Secretary Dominic Raab has announced further Magnitsky sanctions on Russia.

Listen to Bill Browder's first-hand account of how the murder of his Russian adviser Sergei Magnitsky inspired his worldwide campaign for the sanctions in his name.

Download the Podcast

Listen In:

Bill Browder on the State of Law in Putin's Russia

STAY CONNECTED

