

Family Law Reform Now network – Call for Abstracts

We are pleased to announce the launch of the Family Law Reform Now network (FLRN). We aim to provide a platform and space for academics and practitioners of family law to come together and provide a collective push for improvement and reform in family law.

We are looking for those interested in ‘pitching’ ideas and participating in discussions to form part of the network. We are hosting an inaugural ‘pitching’ workshop for proposals for reform, to take place in summer 2022.

If you are an academic or practitioner who has an idea for the way in which family law ought to be reformed and are willing to ‘pitch’ your idea (for a short period of around 5-10 minutes), please submit an abstract as below. We intend to develop one or more of the proposals as a collaborative, funded, law reform project, with a view to making a practical difference to legislation and policy in England and Wales.

How to participate: Academics and practitioners interested in submitting a proposal and presenting it at an online workshop on the afternoon of Monday 27th June 2022 (times TBC) should send an abstract of up to 300 words to Dr Charlotte Bendall and Dr Rehana Parveen at familylawreformnow@gmail.com by Friday 27th May 2022.
