Special Issue

Repelling Asylum-Seekers in Europe? Asylum-Seekers as an "Anomaly" in EU and UK Migration Laws and Policies

Message from the Guest Editor

The aims of this Special Issue are twofold:

- Explore the reconstruction of asylum seekers as an 'anomaly' in EU and UK migration laws and policies;
- Ask whether we are witnessing the end of asylumseeking in Europe.

This Special Issue falls within the scope of Laws. It also responds to the journal's statement that 'contributions that bridge traditional boundaries and challenge injustices are particularly welcome'. Topics of interest include the following:

- Refugee externalisation laws and policies in Europe;
- Containment laws and policies;
- Push-backs;
- Border violence;
- The illegalisation of asylum seekers;
- Non-entry regimes;
- Off-shoring of asylum procedures;
- Responsibility sharing;
- Safe and legal paths for asylum seekers and refugees;
- Aspects of asylum procedures.

Contributions may focus on the EU, individual EU Member States and/or the UK and use a range of methodological approaches.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Laws is an international, open access journal featuring rigorous scholarship on critical developments in governance, courts, agencies, and social order. Analysis and synthesis, theory and practice, and empirical and doctrinal work have appeared in the journal; contributions that bridge these traditional boundaries are particularly welcome. The social sciences and humanities generate insights both from and for the legal system. While theory grounds Laws in a timeless dialogue shaped by traditions of inquiry, legal practice ensures that scholars are addressing pressing problems. Both normative and positive scholarship can aid policymakers, judges, and agency officials. Laws brings together the work of theorists and practitioners, and a diverse range of empirical researchers, to promote the progress of foundational legal norms.
