MOVEMENT. A change of position or passage from place to place. This year, we come together to interrogate the concept of movement and what it means to us in its myriad forms for gender and sexuality. Movement as action, politics, activism, mobility, migration, art and life flow into and through us. We think about the relationship between movement and space – moving into and out of places to make them our own. And it is not just about how we move, but also how we are moved – by powerful institutions but also by our communities and shared sense of humanity. This year’s annual lecture is a call to move and be moved from the margins into the centre. How do we, the marginalised move the conversation and places around us? To cause those ripples and earthquakes? Join us as we discuss the joys and pain of being the marginalised mover and moved with Sajida Ismail of Grass Routes Movement CIC; Alaa Khaled (MMU) and Samantha Morgan (MMU).
